North Osaka Eco-Net is aiming for local production/consumption of food and renewable energies reflecting local characteristics. We work on vitalizing local agriculture, spreading PV and promoting bio-diesel made of used cooking oil. We are planning to work on the use of methane gas from organic sludge and garbage for fuel cells. We aim for the creation of the circulation society where human and nature live with harmony.

In 1997 the Seikatsu Club Coop and the Tokyo Electric Power Company started a collaboration named "The Monitorial Business of the Photovoltaic Energy". The purpose was to make the Photovoltaic Energy popular in the metropolitan area. We gathered data of amount of consumption, and amount of generation which depend on geographical characteristic, daylight hours, and on direction, inclination, material of roof and so on at 132 cases in Tokyo and Kanagawa. The detailed data acquisition over 3 years was the first one in Japan and became rare, and valuable in the world. After the Monitorial Business, we renamed ourselves CELC (Clean Energy Life Club). With those data that have been stored, our members continue the activity. We independently gather data once per a month. On the other hand, we have to do a follow-up survey of device being used at each home and consider the influence on the environment in scrapping them. We aim at a Clean Energy Society by sharing information with the other organization and popularization activity.

The forum was founded in June 1999. Through the collaboration with Kyushu Electric Power Company, we subsidized the PV installation for 433 pioneer people by March 2002. Through Kyushu Renewable Energy School and training courses for setting up free standing PV (i.e. without grid connection), we are active in promoting renewable energies. We are planning to work on the installation of cooperative citizens' PV power plant.

The forum was founded in May 2003 to promote PV in Fukui prefecture, which has heavy snow. We installed two citizens' cooperative PV power plant with the investment by people. We have about 50 investors and 70 members. The first one is called Monju (the name of a god of wisdom), as a symbol of citizens' wisdom, and the second one is called Smile, as a symbol of citizens' enthusiasm. We are presently struggling for establishing the third one. We also organize Renewable Energy Seminars with Eco-Plan Fukui.

This new network will be the first major-scale community of photovoltaic power plant chiefs. 80% of Japanese PV plants are owned by citizens, although, very few exchanges were made between those alienated individuals. This network will gather these green energy pioneers to exchange views with electric power companies, manufacturing corporations and installation agencies. We also aim to popularize green energy in the Japanese society.
